Thai Library Association

Background

Libraries in Thailand were originated in Buddhist monasteries, in Sukhothai period, more than 700 years ago. When King Rama I established Bangkok in A.D. 1782, apart from various prominent success to put law and order into the country, he ordered to collect documentary heritage of older Ayutthaya period into Ho Luang or royal library. King Rama III ordered to collect branches of knowledge and then inscribed it on wall of buildings in Wat Pho (Pho Monastery) as first modern university or library for people education. Recognized on the importance of main library for the country, King Rama V or King Chulalongkorn ordered to merge three royal libraries into one main library which was the starting point of the National Library of Thailand. New types of libraries have been established day by day by parent bodies. At present libraries are not administered under one single administrative body. In this situation the Thai Library Association under the Patronage of H.R.H. Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn is the only professional coordinating body on library matter in Thailand.

Thai Library Association (TLA), the only national library association in Thailand, was established formally on October 11, 1954 by a group Thai librarians who attended library science courses organized at Chulalongkorn University under the Fulbright programme starting in 1950–1952. After continuously performing the duties, H.R.H. Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn has graciously accepted the Thai Library Association be under her Royal Patronage. As ever before, at present, the Association performs duties to win recognition for the profession as well as to upgrade the status of librarians in Thai society.

Objectives

1. To support unity and encourage professional assistance among members;
2. To support and promote librarianship, information science education and cultural activities;
3. To support library institutions all around the country for the growth and professional development;
4. To share and exchange professional knowledge, ideas and experience among colleagues, and with other local and international library associations;
5. To safeguard the welfare and the status of library and information personnel;
6. To act, upon request, as consultant, supervising library organization and operation of individual corporate bodies, agencies and other institutions;
7. To perform as a central agency for supportive assistance from individual, organizational, or institutional sources, in order to achieve Association goal;
8. To be free from any political involvement.

Organization Structure

The Thai Library Association is governed through an Executive Committee of 25 members elected from among the regular and associate membership at large at the annual convention usually in December or March, to hold the office for the period of two years.
